

Dear Neonatal Nursing Colleagues,

As you may have seen, NANN has made the decision to move their fall conference online to more safely meet the needs of neonatal nurses during the pandemic. From October 21-23, the NANN Virtual Annual Conference will touch on the latest in clinical education and upcoming developments in the neonatal nursing field. I am looking forward to attending the meeting and hope you'll consider joining me along with so many of our friends and peers. I've attached NANN's conference brochure for your reference. You can also visit www.nann.org/conference to learn more about what's sure to be the most important neonatal conference this year!

Hope to 'virtually' see you this fall!
