The Voice for Neonatal Nurses

Today, high-risk neonates have a better chance of thriving because of medical advances and the dedicated care they receive. Neonatal nurses are on the front line, providing around-the-clock care for these most vulnerable patients. The National Association of Neonatal Nurses (NANN) stands behind these nurses, supporting their educational and professional needs.

NANN is a community of registered nursing professionals at all stages of their careers who care for newborn infants born with a variety of health challenges. For more than 30 years, NANN has advanced the profession by providing opportunities for members to

- influence care for neonates and their families by setting practice standards, developing resources that support those standards, and forming alliances with other healthcare-related groups that have an impact on neonatal practice
- collaborate with leaders and peers in their field through networking, local and regional chapter and volunteer opportunities, and special interest groups
- gain knowledge to improve their daily practice through many print and digital communications, including Advances in Neonatal Care (NANN's peer-reviewed journal), free and discounted CNE, and special pricing on NANN products and annual educational conference.
